

PRESS RELEASE – The Rhymers help us say Thank You

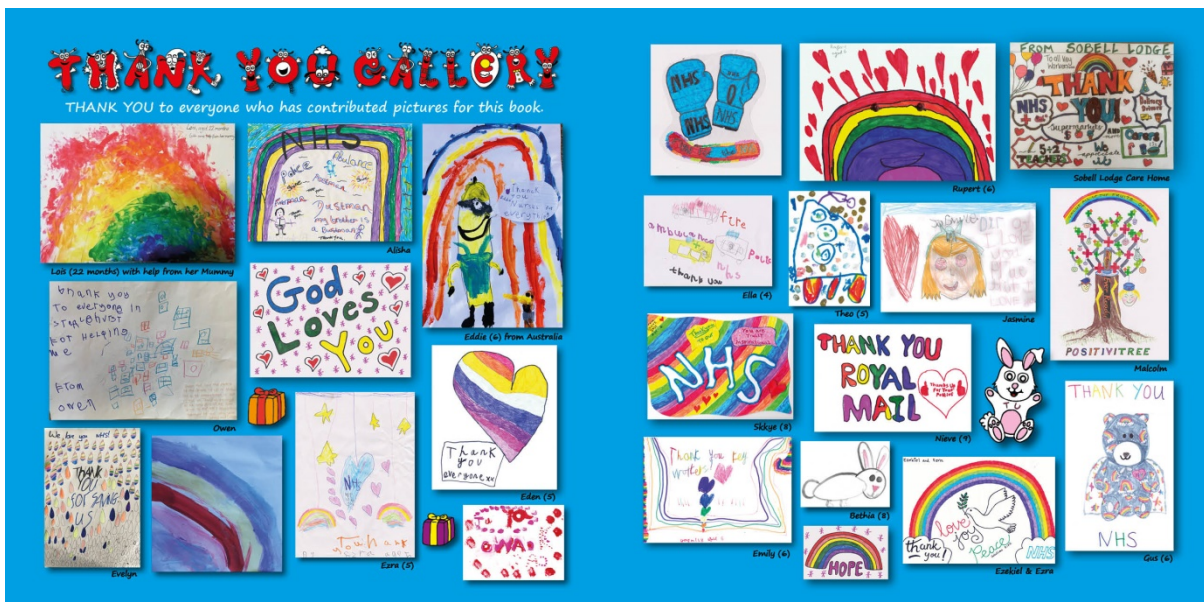

Many children have struggled to find expression for their feelings during these challenging times, yet have enjoyed creating beautiful art work to express their gratitude to the numerous key workers.

Author, Andrew Buller, has included this art work within his new story 'The Rhymers help us say Thank You' which is now available through Amazon:

The book helps children focus on the many things we have to be grateful for and the numerous people we can thank who help us on a daily basis. It can be used within schools to demonstrate what is possible with collaborative art projects and within PSHE lessons tackling issues raised at these times. Schools have expressed interest in giving copies of the book to those that are struggling emotionally.

Children's appreciation for the hard work and sacrifice of others can be seen in the large "Thank You Gallery" that grew to accompany this project alongside the A229 in Staplehurst, Kent.

People donated to Andrew's NHS Charities Together Just Giving page and at least 50p from the sale of each book is being donated to the same charity (registered charity no. 1186569).
